

Food pantries in Prince George's Maryland.

Food pantries and distribution centers in Prince George's County Maryland administer several assistance programs. The locations may have meals, free food, gift baskets and items such as clothing available to the low income seniors and disabled in the community. Resources offered by these centers can range from groceries and boxes of food up through limited amounts of financial help for bills, housing, or basic needs such as diapers or baby formula.

Some of the Prince George's food banks partner with national non-profits, government agencies, or local charities. For example, many sites can help people apply for resources such as food stamps, LIHEAP, or low income housing. Other services will also be arranged as needed.

Anything noted above would of course would be in addition to helping needy families by providing free or low cost food, meals, and perishable items. The goal is to prevent hunger in the region.
